Stepping Stones

Supported accommodation for individuals affected by a learning disability, mental health condition, a physical disability or an autistic spectrum condition.

About the service

Stepping Stones provides low level supported accommodation for individuals that need some assistance before moving into long-term, independent accommodation. We work with people for up to six months who are over the age of 18 and require support as a result of having a learning disability, mental health condition, autistic spectrum condition or a physical disability. Individuals will have their own flat with staff support available during office hours and an out of hours support service via telephone or intercom.

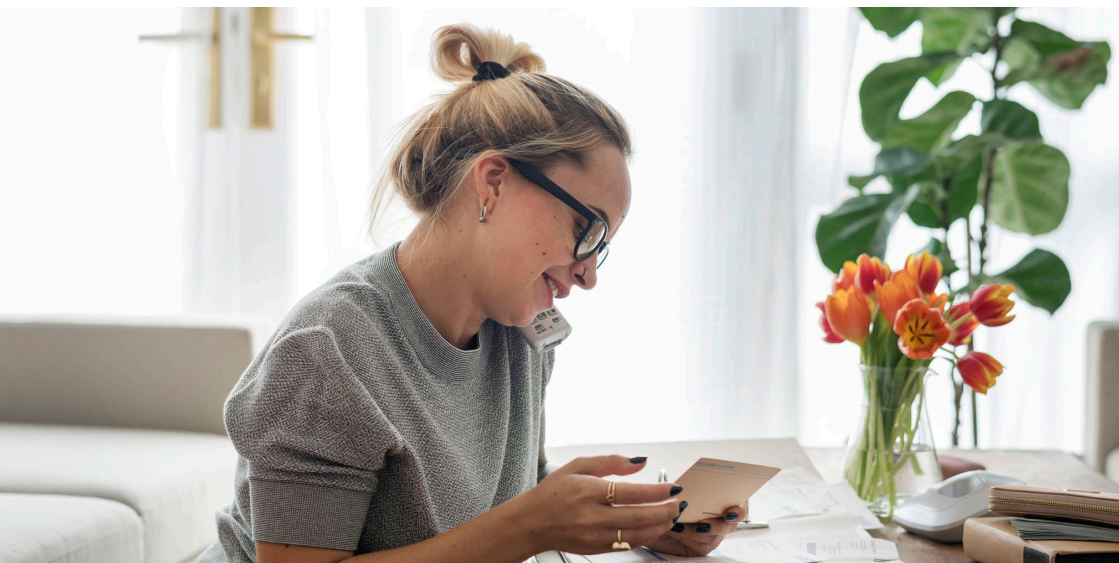

How does the service work?

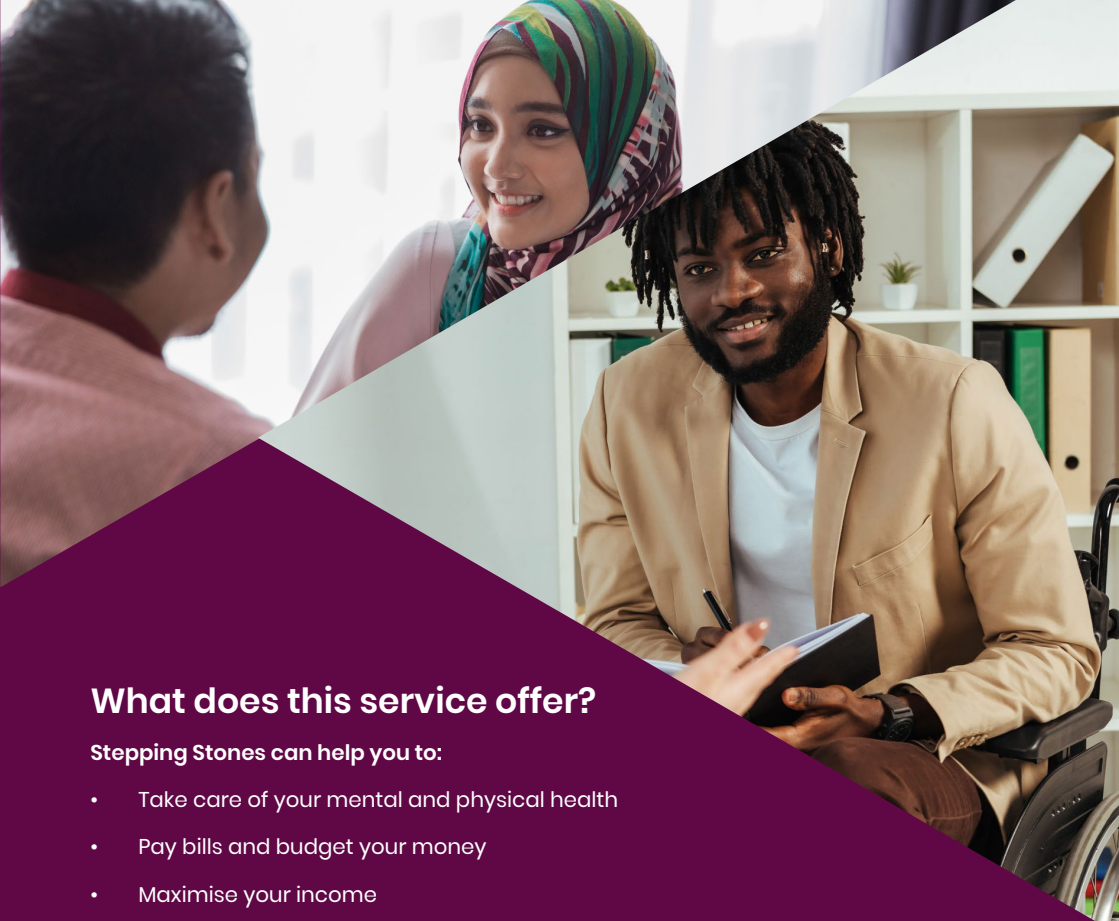

We provide a vital stepping stone for individuals who are aiming for independent living in the community but don't quite have the confidence and skills for this yet.

People may need the service for a variety of reasons, for instance:

- Leaving an institutional or care setting like a hospital ward or residential home
- Ready to move on from a more intensive supported housing setting
- Ready to move on from family who have provided support
- At risk of abuse or neglect in their current accommodation
- Unable to maintain their current accommodation due to their support needs.

The staff team will provide a variety of support via one to ones and the opportunity for group work and activities. We will agree an individual support plan with you that covers a variety of areas, helping you identify and move towards an appropriate long-term housing solution.

What does this service offer?

Stepping Stones can help you to:

- Take care of your mental and physical health
- Pay bills and budget your money
- Maximise your income
- Maintain a safe and tidy home
- Find long-term accommodation
- Take part in training, volunteering and employment
- Access groups, activities and support in your local community.

We can't provide personal care and we aren't able to manage people's money on their behalf, but we can work with people who have these services provided elsewhere.
